

Ms Annisah Smith

Senior Strategic Partnerships Manager
Stewardship Asia Centre

Annisah Smith is a Senior Strategic Partnerships Manager at Stewardship Asia Centre (SAC), where she leads sustainability and youth-focused initiatives across Singapore and the ASEAN region. In this role, she works closely with senior business leaders, youth communities, and public institutions to build transformative partnerships that promote steward leadership and cross-sectoral learning. Her work is grounded in the belief that long-term impact is achieved through collaboration, innovation, and values-driven leadership.

Annisah is a seasoned sustainability practitioner with expertise in environmental governance, sustainable palm oil, and responsible business practices. She has conducted policy and due diligence research across Southeast Asia and in Latin America, with a focus on natural resource management and equitable development. As a Fulbright Research Scholar in Malaysia, she examined the complexities of sustainable palm oil in both regional and global contexts.

Her international experience spans the U.S., Costa Rica, Indonesia, Malaysia, and Singapore—shaping her global perspective and deepening her commitment to inclusive, systems-level change. Passionate about youth empowerment, Annisah is also a member of the National Youth Council's INSPIRIT community, where she advocates for young voices in national and community dialogues.

She holds a combined B.A./M.A. in International Relations and Global Environmental Policy from American University's School of International Service.
