

Mr Jaime Ho
Editor, The Straits Times
SPH Media Trust

Jaime Ho is the Editor of The Straits Times, Singapore's English daily newspaper.

Prior to joining The Straits Times in October 2022, Jaime was a partner at FGS Global, a global strategic advisory firm. During his time at FGS Global, he led its Singapore office and its operations both locally and regionally.

Jaime started his career with Singapore's Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1997, and oversaw issues ranging from bilateral relations with Europe, the United States, Malaysia and Indonesia to global issues such as climate change.

In 2013, he left MFA to join MediaCorp as associate editor, overseeing Singapore news in the TV newsroom, and later took on the roles of deputy chief editor of Radio News, as well as deputy chief editor of CNA International News.

Jamie was appointed chief editor, CNA Digital, in January 2016, a role he held until April 2022.
